AltaPointe's developmental disability program is hosting an event on Saturday, Sept. 20 for people with developmental disabilities to gain information about all the community resources available to them, and how to apply for the Alabama Medicaid waiver service.

The Alabama Department of Mental Health, Goodwill, and Franklin Primary Health Clinic are some of the outside vendors who will be there.

AltaPointe has a dozen case managers assigned to its developmental disability case management services. They provide services to children and adults in Mobile County personal care, transportation, supported employment, residential rehabilitation, physical therapy, speech therapy, crisis intervention and much more.

Case managers assess individual need, develop a care plan, advocate and link people with needed services and monitor their progress.
